

Alyaa Al Mulla is a policy-maker, wellbeing and healthy longevity advocate in the UAE, she advises her government on improving population's healthspan and wellbeing. She had developed an evidence-based framework for Happiness & Wellbeing at the workplace for both public and private sectors as well as applied tools and measures for improving overall wellbeing in organizations. She is the Founder of Longevity, a public policy Think Tank in the United Arab Emirates. She was the Director of Wellbeing and Longevity in the UAE's Prime Minister's Office and she is currently a longevity and healthcare advisor at the UAE's Genome Office and the Abu Dhabi Executive Office.

As a policy maker and civil servant, Alyaa leads a dynamic team in developing policies, programs and partnerships that support the UAE government's vision 2071; incorporating leading interdisciplinary research in behavioral science, neuroscience, positive psychology, mental health and human longevity.

Alyaa holds a Master's degree in Public Administration from the Harvard Kennedy School of Government (HKS), Harvard University 2016. She is a Fellow at the Center of Public Leadership in HKS. A was an academic fellow at the Oxford Institute of Population Ageing, Oxford University. She was a member at the World Economic Forum's Future Council on Human Enhancement and Healthy Longevity for two terms.